ABOUT US

Aha! Publishing House is a Melbourne-based publishing house committed to creating and publishing books that inspire, guide, and bring companionship to people's lives. We believe that confusion, pain, and uncertainty are all natural parts of the human experience—and that everyone deserves a voice of guidance through these moments. Many things we assume we know, or are expected by society to understand, actually require navigation. Our books aim to provide exactly that: emotional support, new perspectives, gentle guidance, and self-development.

Whether it is appreciating art or understanding science, what we ultimately gain is the same: the joy of beauty and a renewed way of seeing the world.

Our catalogue spans diverse genres: from science to art, picture books to memoirs, primarily for young readers, yet with universal themes that speak to all. We are committed to sustainability, reducing our emissions and carbon footprint. Every detail of the reading experience matters to us: from typography and spacing to cover design and paper quality. Each book is crafted with materials and designs tailored to its genre and purpose.

Our core team consists of five women who value both literature and quality of life. We draw upon our personal experiences, professional insights, and genuine care to create books that help readers navigate life's obstacles—offering what we once needed ourselves. As bilingual creators, we also dedicate ourselves to producing translated editions, fostering cross-cultural dialogue and expanding the reach of meaningful stories.

EMBRACE THE WORLD; EMBRACE YOURSELF.

LIST RATIONALE

Aha! Publishing House's philosophy is rooted in the idea that knowledge and beauty can coexist—that a book can be both scientifically rigorous and emotionally supportive, as well as visually inspiring, all at once.

The list reflects a holistic approach to modern living, spanning physical health, mental clarity, creativity, and cultural understanding.

- A Guide for HER anchors the list with its credible science-based female health education, appealing to readers seeking trustworthy information in an era flooded with unverified wellness advice.
- Oh, My Stars! serves as a creative and mindful in-house product, increasing profitability and brand recognition through art-led relaxation experiences.
- Work, Gen Z! brings generational humour and workplace commentary, tapping into the social media culture of Gen Z while offering sincere psychological insight.
- Oops! I Cooked It Wrong broadens the catalogue with humour and relatability, showing that learning—even in the kitchen—can be light-hearted and joyful.
- Destiny in Your Hands introduces cross-cultural wisdom, positioning the press as a house that values diversity, heritage, and intellectual curiosity.

Together, these titles embody a publishing identity that is empathetic, cross-disciplinary, and visually refined. They appeal to readers who want to understand their world—and themselves—through clarity, compassion, and creativity.

MARKET FOCUS

Aha! Publishing House primarily targets young to mid-aged adult readers—especially Gen Z and Millennials—navigating transitional phases of life such as entering adulthood, building careers, or seeking emotional balance. Our audience is globally aware, culturally curious, and drawn to books that combine authentic insight, scientific grounding, and emotional resonance.

While our tone is contemporary and accessible, our content maintains high intellectual and aesthetic value. We focus on non-fiction titles that guide, comfort, and inspire—books that readers turn to not only for entertainment but for genuine self-improvement and emotional support.

Our core readership intersects four key niches, which are currently experiencing high growth in the Australian market:

- Mindful Wellbeing: Women aged 18-65 interested in health, lifestyle, and mental wellbeing.
- Contemporary Self-Help: Gen Z and Millennials seeking humour-infused self-help and relatable content.
- Aesthetic Lifestyle: Creative adults drawn to design-driven, visually appealing books.
- Cultural Insight: Readers engaged with cultural exploration, modern spirituality, and cross-cultural wisdom.

We aim to occupy the intersection between science, psychology, culture, and creativity—a space that promotes informed living and emotional literacy through beautifully made books.

REVENUE MODEL

Aha! Publishing House implements a professional dual sales strategy to optimise profitability and market penetration across our list. Our distribution is designed for maximum coverage while leveraging independent channels to cultivate our premium brand image.

Our commercial approach strategically separates our titles into two models:

1. High-Discount, High-Volume (Tier 1): This tier is reserved for seasonal bestsellers, targeting Discount Department Stores (DDSs) and national chains. We use an aggressive discount structure to secure massive initial orders, aiming for rapid sell-through and peak revenue during the Christmas season. This model validates our high print runs.
2. Low-Discount, Low-Volume (Tier 2): This is applied to evergreen and niche works, such as the A Guide for Her series. We prioritise independent bookstores (e.g. Readings) and specialised online retailers. This model secures higher margins and the premium positioning of our books, essential for building a profitable long-tail sales profile year-round.

Independent bookstores are vital for reaching our core readership—those driven by aesthetic value and intellectual depth. Online retailers (e.g. Booktopia) ensure maximum discoverability and competitive reach.

Furthermore, we are actively developing high-margin revenue streams through specialty sales. Titles like A Guide for Her are promoted for bulk purchases by corporate wellness programs or university centres. We also utilise social media to drive Direct-to-Consumer (D2C) sales through our website, enabling us to retain 100% of the revenue and establish a direct relationship with our Gen Z and Millennial readers.

STRENGTHS 💪

- Focuses on real-life, relatable themes that meet readers at the intersection of science, art, and emotion.
- Its diverse list spans multiple genres—health, lifestyle, humour, creativity, and culture—allowing for cross-promotion and long-term brand growth.
- The bilingual creative team enhances international communication and opens doors to translation rights, cultural exchange, and participation in global book fairs. This multilingual foundation strengthens the brand's credibility in both the domestic and global markets.

OPPORTUNITIES ★

- The press occupies a distinct niche: books that are scientifically reliable yet emotionally engaging, appealing to readers who seek more depth than typical lifestyle titles offer.
- Mental health, self-care, and emotional literacy are among the most rapidly growing global publishing trends, offering fertile ground for the company's identity. The books also make ideal gift choices due to their aesthetic design and uplifting tone.
- Partnerships with scientists, psychologists, and cultural experts further enhance authority, media potential, and educational applications.

WEAKNESSES 😞

- As a new entrant in the publishing market, the company currently lacks brand awareness and a loyal reader base.
- High production costs, particularly for illustrated and full-color titles, pose a financial challenge in the short term.
- The absence of a digital or audiobook platform limits accessibility, especially among younger readers who consume media primarily online.

THREATS 🔪

- The abundance of free online wellness and lifestyle content on social media makes it difficult to persuade audiences to purchase physical books.
- Strong competition from established Australian lifestyle publishers such as Hardie Grant may restrict visibility and shelf space in the early stages.
- To compete effectively, the publisher must rely on its distinctive editorial voice, refined design, and multidisciplinary credibility.

A GUIDE FOR HER MENSTRUATION

Every month, your body tells a story—not of pain or inconvenience, but of rhythm, strength, and renewal.

A Guide for Her Menstruation helps women of all ages understand their cycles through the lenses of science, psychology, and nutrition.

Written by Dr Kathryn Witzeman, Dr Sofia Cooper, and Sharnie Dwyer, this book dismantles the stigma around menstruation and replaces myths with knowledge. You'll learn what's actually happening inside your body, why cramps occur, how hormones influence mood, and what nutrition and movement can ease discomfort naturally.

This is not another sentimental or 'self-love' book filled with vague comfort. It's a trusted, evidence-based companion that helps you read your body with clarity and compassion—so you can live in sync with it, not in fear of it.

Sales Points

- Science-based, not pseudo-science: Authored by experts in biology, psychology, and nutrition, with practical advice supported by research.
- Holistic structure: Covers body, mind, and lifestyle—helping women not only understand but also thrive during transitions.
- Breaking taboos: Treating menstruation with the seriousness and respect it deserves.
- Accessible language: Written in a clear, warm, and empowering voice.
- Practical resources: Includes checklists, nutrition guides, myth-busting facts, and everyday strategies for self-care.

Authors Bio

A Guide for HER is written by a team of three women scientists, each bringing expertise from her field:

- Kathryn Witzeman is an Associate Professor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University Of Colorado School Of Medicine. In 2008, Dr Witzeman founded the Women's Integrated Pelvic Health Centre at Denver Health Medical Centre. She is a Fellow of the American College of OBGYN, and her clinical and research interests include pelvic pain, menstrual disorders, menopausal problems, and biomedical ethics as it applies to the field of OBGYN and medical education.
- Sofia Cooper (PhD, Psychology) is a clinical psychologist and researcher based in Barcelona. Dr Cooper has worked extensively on the intersection of body image, cultural taboos, and women's mental health. She advocates for reframing menstruation, menopause, and sexuality as natural and empowering experiences.
- Sharnie Dwyer, leading women's health dietitian on the Gold Coast, is helping women of all ages nutritionally, hormonally and holistically to manage their symptoms and achieve their health goals. With first-class honours and awards for clinical excellence in Nutrition and Dietetics, Sharnie brings clinical expertise as well as a compassionate approach to helping women.

Marketing Strategy

- Author Platform & Media Execution: Kathryn Witzeman will lead the initial charge, focusing on Australian-based audio and podcast media where her personal brand and expertise can shine. (The Daily Talk Show, Ladybrains)
- Christmas Gifting: Nov-Dec 2025 Boxed Set Special, promote the books as the 'Ultimate Guide to the New Year.' Feature in bookseller holiday catalogues (Readings, Dymocks).
- International Women's Day: March 8, 2026, partner with major retailers for an IWD-themed author panel discussion on the series' core themes. Offer a small discount or bundle deal.

A GUIDE FOR HER MENOPAUSE

Menopause is not an ending—it's a recalibration of the extraordinary system that has carried you through life.

A Guide for Her Menopause invites women to understand this transition as a biological evolution, not a decline.

Through medical insight, psychological reflection, and holistic care, Dr Kathryn Witzeman, Dr Sofia Cooper, and Sharnie Dwyer help readers navigate symptoms, hormonal changes, and shifting identities with dignity and knowledge. The book explores how nutrition, movement, and mindset can work together to ease discomfort and enhance vitality during this natural phase of life.

More than a medical manual, it's a guide to renewal—showing that when you meet change with understanding, you gain more than you lose.

A GUIDE FOR HER SEXUAL HEALTH

Understanding your sexual health is an act of self-respect—not something to fear, hide, or apologise for.

A Guide for Her Sexual Health empowers women to approach their sexuality with knowledge, safety, and self-awareness.

Drawing on expertise from Dr Kathryn Witzeman, Dr Sofia Cooper, and Sharnie Dwyer, this guide combines anatomy, psychology, and nutrition to demystify desire, consent, protection, and pleasure. It acknowledges the cultural taboos and misinformation that surround sex, offering instead a factual, respectful, and compassionate approach to one of the most intimate parts of being human.

This is not a moral lecture—it's a scientifically grounded conversation about understanding your body, protecting it, and embracing it with confidence.

Sales Points

- Science-based, not pseudo-science: Authored by experts in biology, psychology, and nutrition, with practical advice supported by research.
- Holistic structure: Covers body, mind, and lifestyle—helping women not only understand but also thrive during transitions.
- Breaking taboos: Treating menstruation with the seriousness and respect it deserves.
- Accessible language: Written in a clear, warm, and empowering voice.
- Practical resources: Includes checklists, nutrition guides, myth-busting facts, and everyday strategies for self-care.

Marketing Strategy

- Author Platform & Media Execution: Sharnie Dwyer will lead the media execution, focusing on podcast media and her own website where her personal brand and expertise can shine.
- Christmas Gifting: Nov-Dec 2025 Boxed Set Special, promote the books as the 'Ultimate Guide to the New Year.' Feature in bookseller holiday catalogues (Readings, Dymocks).
- Mother's Day: May 2026 'Gift for Mum' Campaign, promote it as a gift for mothers, focusing on themes like empowerment, leadership, or work-life balance.

Authors Bio

A Guide for HER is written by a team of three women scientists, each bringing expertise from her field:

- Kathryn Witzeman is an Associate Professor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University Of Colorado School Of Medicine. In 2008, Dr Witzeman founded the Women's Integrated Pelvic Health Centre at Denver Health Medical Centre. She is a Fellow of the American College of OBGYN, and her clinical and research interests include pelvic pain, menstrual disorders, menopausal problems, and biomedical ethics as it applies to the field of OBGYN and medical education.
- Sofia Cooper (PhD, Psychology) is a clinical psychologist and researcher based in Barcelona. Dr Cooper has worked extensively on the intersection of body image, cultural taboos, and women's mental health. She advocates for reframing menstruation, menopause, and sexuality as natural and empowering experiences.
- Sharnie Dwyer, leading women's health dietitian on the Gold Coast, is helping women of all ages nutritionally, hormonally and holistically to manage their symptoms and achieve their health goals. With first-class honours and awards for clinical excellence in Nutrition and Dietetics, Sharnie brings clinical expertise as well as a compassionate approach to helping women.

OH, MY STARS!

Welcome to this cosmic colouring journey!

Here, there are no boundaries—only endless galaxies, shimmering stars, and cosmic wonders waiting to be illuminated. Each page is a voyage, and every planet calls out for your colours. You can colour the moon in the glow of roses, let the planets burn with lavender serenity, and send shooting stars streaking across your moods and imagination.

Whether you're seeking calm after a long day, inspiration for your creativity, or simply the joy of watching the stars brighten beneath your touch, this book is your sanctuary. Let every stroke of colour connect you with the infinite night sky—the universe is waiting for your answer.

Sales Points

- Immersive cosmic colouring experience—inspired by galaxies, constellations, and planetary forms, this book invites readers to unwind and reconnect through a meditative journey across the stars.
- Artistic yet accessible design—being suitable for both beginners and seasoned colourists using pencils, markers, or watercolour pens.
- A beautiful gift for any occasion—with its dreamy cosmic theme and elegant layout, OH, My Stars! makes the perfect self-care treat or thoughtful gift for birthdays, holidays, or moments of reflection.

Marketing Strategy

- User-driven engagement—encourage readers to share their colouring works online under hashtags (#OhMyStarsBook #ColourTheUniverse).
- Selective cross-brand collaboration—free sample books may be provided for co-promotion (e.g. some lifestyle brands/activities), with no paid campaigns.
- Extended Marketing Activities—develop merchandise (e.g. postcards, planner stickers, and desk calendars) using low-risk, low-inventory print on demand (POD) or short-run printing.

Authors Bio

Heartbeat Studio is the in-house creative team behind a range of bestselling colouring and gift books. Their work celebrated imagination, tranquility, and the beauty of everyday creativity. Blending art, mindfulness and storytelling, the team draws inspiration from nature, dreams, and the infinite universe to design books that invite readers to slow down, reconnect, and rediscover wonder through colour.

From dreamy concepts to cosmic visions, every project by Heartbeat Studio reflects their belief that creativity is a gentle form of healing—and that even the smallest spark of inspiration can light up an entire sky.

WORK, GEN Z!

A FIELD GUIDE TO SURVIVING YOUR JOB

Allie Brosh

You thought graduation was the final boss? Nah bestie, that was the tutorial. Welcome to the 9 to 5 boss level, and your survival quest just dropped.

This isn't your career bible for climbing the corporate ladder, it's a survival kit for office rookies, workplace clowns, and overthinking pros just trying to make it to 5 PM. Filled with quotes made for your story and punchy enough to hook you by page one, it's the kind of book you sneak read at your desk, silently nodding while praying your boss doesn't walk by. Don't worry if you're not 'cut out for work', just get through today. Take it one meme at a time.

Sales Points

- Culturally grounded, Gen Z first. This book speaks directly to Australia's Gen Z office workers. It mirrors the humour, overwhelm, and contradictions.
- Structure driven and scenario based, built around 50 relatable workplace scenarios, each chapter offers a concise, illustrated guide to navigating one specific situation.
- Empowering without being prescriptive, This is not a guide to becoming your 'best self at work.' It's a toolkit for surviving the early years of working life.

Authors Bio

Allie Brosh is the author and illustrator of the #1 New York Times bestselling book Hyperbole and a Half and Solutions and Other Problems. Countless readers celebrate her for her chaotic stick figure illustrations, candid and sharp humour, and self-deprecating wit, often hailed as 'the funniest person ever to draw anxiety and breakdowns.' She was named one of Forbes' 30 Under 30 and recognised by Adweek as one of the most influential creative voices in the world. Allie currently lives in Oregon, USA, where her daily life consists of drawing, overthinking, and repeatedly checking whether she's used the wrong emoji!!

Marketing Strategy

- Online engagement: Encourage readers to share their own 'tiny chaos moments' through short posts, memes, or doodles inspired by Allie's drawings.
- Brand partnerships.
- Collaborate with stationery and coffee brands to release limited-edition merchandise, 'Anxiety Journals' and 'Survival Coffee'.
- Experiential events.
- Host signing sessions combined with interactive drawing workshops, inviting participants to 'draw yourself today' in Allie's signature chaotic style.

OOPS! I COOKED IT WRONG: A COMIC SURVIVAL GUIDE FOR KITCHEN ROOKIES

Alice Zaslavsky, Sarah Becan

Nobody is born knowing what a 'pinch' or a 'handful' really means, how to chop an onion without weeping, or when pasta is perfectly cooked. Oops! I Cooked It Wrong is a humorous comic cookbook, turning kitchen confusion into laughter and saving rookies who know nothing about cooking.

With step-by-step guidance from Alice Zaslavsky and Sarah Becan, this book makes learning to cook fun, easy and totally stress-free. Perfect for anyone who's ever stared at a recipe and thought, 'Wait... what?'

Sales Points

- Fill the gap of kitchen common sense that are not mentioned in normal cookbook.
- A full-coloured comic cookbook with humour and stories.
- Credible guidance from a celebrated Australian food writer.
- Ideal for beginners, students living alone for the first time and gift seekers.

Marketing Strategy

- Send copies to TikTok and YouTube creators to make videos based on excerpts, such as 'Cooking Alone for the First Time'.
- Collaborate with student unions to promote the book to young adults who are cooking for themselves for the first time.
- Partner with kitchenware companies to run prize draws for cookware sets.

Authors Bio

Alice Zaslavsky is a well-known Australian food writer after participating in the MasterChef Australia, and she also advocates for food education. Her works include several award-winning cookbooks. The works In Praise of Veg and Better Cooking are praised for their approachable, humorous style and easy-to-follow guidance, helping readers build confidence in the kitchen.

Sarah Becan is an award-winning comics artist, illustrator and designer. She is the creator of a food-centric autobiographical webcomic. Beyond comics work, Sarah has contributed illustrations to various projects, including restaurant menus, beer labels, and travelogues.

DESTINY IN YOUR HANDS: A GUIDE TO CHINESE PALMISTRY

Xinyue Lin

For centuries, Chinese palmistry has offered a way to understand the self and navigate life's path. In Destiny in Your Hands, cultural practitioner Xinyue Lin presents this ancient art with clarity and modern relevance.

Blending tradition with accessibility, the book introduces the major lines, hand shapes, and patterns of Chinese palmistry, showing how they reflect personality, relationships, and turning points in life. Illustrated guides and concise charts make it easy to read and apply the wisdom of the hand.

Sales Points

- Distinctive Focus on Chinese Palmistry: Blends traditional Chinese palmistry with contemporary wellness practices.
- Illustrated & Accessible: Clear diagrams and step-by-step guidance.
- Gift Appeal: Hardback format with illustrations makes it suitable as a gift book, especially around Chinese New Year.

Marketing Strategy

- Aim at audience interested in astrology, tarot, yoga, and meditation, as well as Chinese culture enthusiasts.
- Hold interactive author events such as palmistry demonstrations and signings.
- Conduct bilingual promotion across both the Chinese community and mainstream media.
- Partner with bookstores during Chinese New Year to create dedicated cultural feature displays.

Authors Bio

Xinyue Lin is a cultural practitioner, and palmistry specialist. She holds a PhD in Chinese Philosophy and has studied palmistry for over fifteen years. She is currently a lecturer in Asian Studies at the University of New South Wales in Sydney, where she teaches courses on Chinese philosophy and Comparative Cultural Studies.

Xinyue is also the founder of Moon Lotus Studio, a space for cultural wellness where she combines palmistry with Chinese tea ceremony, calligraphy, and mindfulness practices. She has led workshops at international cultural festivals and is dedicated to bridging East and West through the renewal of traditional practices.
